4.a. Rationale

The rationale for the study is to provide a comprehensive overview of the current state of the country's health and development. The study is based on a review of the existing literature and a series of interviews with key stakeholders. The study aims to identify the main challenges and opportunities in the country's health and development sectors. The study is organized into four main sections: (1) Introduction, (2) Methodology, (3) Results, and (4) Conclusion. The study is intended to provide a basis for policy and program development. The study is organized into four main sections: (1) Introduction, (2) Methodology, (3) Results, and (4) Conclusion. The study is intended to provide a basis for policy and program development.

4.b. Comment and limitations

The study has several limitations. First, the study is based on a review of the existing literature and a series of interviews with key stakeholders. This may limit the generalizability of the findings. Second, the study is based on a cross-sectional design, which may limit the ability to identify causal relationships. Third, the study is based on a small sample size, which may limit the statistical power of the analysis. Fourth, the study is based on self-reported data, which may be subject to bias. Finally, the study is based on a single point in time, which may limit the ability to identify trends over time.

4.c. Method of computation

The data were collected from a series of interviews with key stakeholders. The interviews were conducted in a semi-structured format, allowing for flexibility in the questions asked. The data were then analyzed using a series of statistical tests. The results of the analysis are presented in the following sections. ### 5. Data availability and disaggregation

The data are available in the CDHS 2016 Report (English). The data are disaggregated by sex, age, and education level. The data are also disaggregated by region. The data are available in the following format: (1) Summary statistics, (2) Detailed data, and (3) Data by region.
